THE RULES OF THE HOUSE.

There is a difference of opinion in the House of Representatives as to whether the rules of the previous House are of that spiritual and indestructible quality which survives the death of the body. The common-sense view of the matter, as stated by several gentlemen yesterday, is that under the general parliamentary usage governing the action of the House the old rules, as the best available embodiment of that usage, are continuous until otherwise ordered.

Mr. Reed of Maine does not believe that any "dead hand" can be laid on the House, which we submit is not entirely respectful to the corpse, of which the gentleman himself was one of the constituent parts, and a pretty lively one at that; but at the same time he does not think that the House is thereby entitled to close. And why not? Simply because the hand that reaches over is as long and imperious as parliamentary law itself and correspondingly efficacious. Hence the spectacle of a House which, though without rules, is yet anything but unyielding.

As between the new rules respectively submitted by Mr. Morrison and Mr. Springer, THE CRITIC will neither time nor disposition to analyze their comparative merits. We shall be well satisfied to see the public business so distributed among the representatives of the people who were elected to look after it, that its transaction may be facilitated and simplified. There is no such overarching virtue in one committee more than another that it alone shall say just how much money ought to be spent.

Both of the proposed codes provide for a District of Columbia Committee to consist of thirteen members. This is excellent and should stand. The Committee on Rules consists of Messrs. Carlisle, Randall, Morrison, Reed and Hiscock. We believe they will see that the interests of the District in the pending behalf will not be ignored.

POLYGAMY MUST GO.

That portion of President Cleveland's message, which relates to the Mormon question is advanced and positive enough to suit even the most aggressive and pronounced crusader against polygamy. So far, however, as the Gentle world is concerned, and Gentle, in the Mormon understanding of the term, includes everybody outside of Zion, there is so little difference of opinion on this subject that it involves no controversial issue. It is simply a question as to what has better been done towards extinguishing a social institution which the public sentiment of the country will not permanently tolerate.

It was not necessary for the President to invest against the obdurate enemies of polygamy with such diabolic vehemence, in order to intensify the already deep-seated prejudices of the popular mind in this point, but it is well perhaps that he selected for the occasion his most forcible rhetoric, that the hierarchs of the Mormon Church may have no doubt as to his meaning, nor comfort themselves with the expectation of leniency from the new Administration.

Mr. AUGUST BELMONT of New York celebrated his seventy-second birthday on Tuesday.

PROFESSOR ALEXANDER ARISTIDES OF Cambridge will leave for the South December 16 and remain until April.

KENTUCKY deserves to be called "the mother of speakers." It has been honored with that office eleven times.—[N. Y. Tribune.]

THE Blair Educational bill is a popular measure in Virginia. Even the children cry for it.

Principles Man," or "An Old Henry Clay Wild," in fact, anything that tends to carry the mind of the reader away back in the dead past. The "Old Fashioned Democrat" has been making himself very numerous of late in the columns of the New York Sun, and the latest danger signal to which attention is called is that the Mugwumps are in the act of "crawling back into the Democratic party." The "Old Fashioned Democrat"—metaphorically speaking, of course—wants the pickets of the party to be on the alert, and nothing served upon the Mugwumps that if they again attempt to cross the line "they will be shot on the spot." In a few years more we shall probably have to read communications signed "Old Fashioned Republican." All some people want is time. The Republican party is yet hardly old enough to have a large crop of the "old fashioned kind," but there will be plenty of them of these days, unless time changes and men change with them.

Meanwhile we would suggest to our Democratic friends to let the Mugwumps in if they are disposed that way, and all others of whatever denomination, and without regard to race, color or previous condition. No party can afford to discourage voluntary enlistments or shut its doors on probationary converts.

The crew of Chicago is astirring the question of a World's Fair in 1892; so is St. Louis. So various other cities are contemplating some such commemorative celebration of the four hundred anniversary of the discovery of America by Columbus. It goes without saying that Washington, of all other cities in the country, is the place for an anniversary festival of that character, and the people instead of frittering away their means in competitive enterprises at a hundred different points, should concentrate all their efforts for the opening. In that year of an exposition at the National Capital which shall not only be worthy of the occasion but eclipse all previous efforts in every length of time at a very reasonable charge.

There was a good attendance at the meeting of the Ladies' Aid at the Goshen Hospital, when Dr. M. T. Tullis, president, addressed the girls. The pastor, Rev. Mr. Miller, performed the ceremony. The bride was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Miller, and the groom was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Miller.

SOCIETY.

Lieutenant Joseph H. Austin, Fourteenth Infantry, who have leave from old Fort Van Court, beat the Ribbit there with Mrs. Goss, and the two are now in Ohio.

It is probable that Mr. and Mrs. Crumpton of New York, who are visiting Judge and Mrs. Shadelberger at their pleasant home on Twentieth street, will spend the winter here.

Mrs. Taylor, lately of 225½ New Jersey avenue, has taken apartments for the season on I street, between Thirtieth and Fourteenth streets.

The daughters of Mr. J. V. N. Hayek, are studying music and painting in Europe. They have wisely decided not to settle down in any city, except Paris, Berlin, Dresden, and Prague, are at present in Hungary.

Mrs. Jessie Madeline, daughter of Mr. J. C. Hayes, of New Haven, was married last night, Rev. Dr. Huntley officiated.
